Planning and Air Drop

Following a joint planning phase with the 173rd Airborne Brigade of the United States, the maroon berets of the 187th Paratrooper Regiment "Folgore" boarded Italian C-130 and American C-17 aircraft at the air bases of Cerklje (Slovenia) and Spangdahlem (Germany). Subsequently, the paratroopers were dropped on the Memel drop zone of the Gaziunai training area in Lithuania, where they conducted a Joint Forcible Entry Operation, aiming to capture and secure the airport area.

Air Assault and Combined Fire Operations

Aboard German NH-90 helicopters, the paratroopers conducted an air assault near the Pabrade training area (Lithuania), where they executed a complex combined fire breach operation, a minor yet complex fire attack, with the opening of a breach on a minefield by paratrooper sappers and the support of American artillery, perfectly integrated into the maneuver.

In the following days, the intense training program included offensive and defensive combat in complex urban areas (Military Operations in Urban Terrain - MOUT range) and anti-tank shooting activities with the Spike LR-1 system. These activities were essential to refine the operational capabilities of the paratroopers in realistic and complex contexts.
